KASSIE GREEN...

Kassie began riding very young and tried out many disciplines along the way—but soon discovered the stock breeds were her favorite and began showing Hunter under saddle and western pleasure in both the American Paint Horse Association and the American Quarter Horse Association on a national level. Kassie credits her time showing with learning to really ride and working with some amazing trainers along the way. She attended NDSU in Fargo, ND where she fell in love with the sport of rodeo. Choosing to college rodeo instead of the horse show team led Kassie to experience rodeo life and the great people involved. Through talented coaching and the help of great friends, Kassie became a barrel racer and began learning the ropes. After graduating she worked as assistant manager of a bank and continued her riding career and training young horses. She was able to work with some of the best horsemen in western SD and began her professional career in the WPRA. In 2011, she returned to Minnesota and began riding full-time. She was introduced to her husband, Jody and quickly learned what "real" rodeo life was like. They began their journey together rodeoing in the PRCA Great Lakes Circuit and have had great success. My husband and I train our own barrel racing and calf roping horses, give lessons and clinics, and take a few outside training horses each year.

Kassie's winnings for the weekend were well over $5,000 with three of her four horses she competed on pulling checks!

MN BREEDERS RUN FUTURITY

I rode Lenas Famous Blondie (Twink) for the win in the MN Breeders Run Futurity. My weekend was extremely busy with running two futurity horses, a maturity horse, and another horse in the slot races. My first run round is still a blur. I remember just going in there and making a solid run and then seeing my time and being very impressed with Twink. I didn't have much time to celebrate though as I was up in the next drag on my other futurity mare. I had run Twink's maternal sister, Lenas Little Redhead (Bossie) the night before to be 4th in the 1D in the Barrel Slot Race; and Twink's first round futurity time was only 5 hundredths slower than Bossie's slot race time, so I knew I had a good chance to win the futurity round and carryover to a good open time as well. Our carried over time ended up being 6th in the 1D out of 300+ in the Open on Saturday. In the second round, I did play it a little safer as I knew the average was at stake and a solid run would be best for us on the bottom of the ground. We ended up 2nd in the round behind Nicole Ratkowski and her great futurity horse and I was just thrilled when we won the average!

My plans for the rest of the summer are to continue to rodeo and futurity. I've been doing well enough at the rodeos to be where I need to be to hopefully make circuit and our amateur association finals, so I will get to go to a few more futurities this fall with my two futurity mares. This is my first full year of futurities and the people have been very nice and friendly, a fun group to compete with!

The MN Breeders Run and MN Challenge was a great event! Leanne Smith, Verna Hultman, and the entire crew did an outstanding job at producing this race. I am so grateful for this run every year and their dedication to making it the best it can be each year is second to none.

I would like to thank my sponsors, Purina Horse Feed, ForeFront Equine, Arena Trailer Sales, and Genesis Town & Country for their continued support and amazing products. I would also like to thank my husband Jody for his support; my mom Tracy for her encouragement and taking care of the farm; my youth student and friend Emily for all her help with the horses during my crazy weekend; and all my awesome and supportive friends! IPS - IDEAL PERFORMANCE STATE

By Ty Hillman

Imagine it's an hour before you are getting ready to compete at a barrel race or rodeo. You are saddling your horse, putting on his boots, braiding his mane, and getting prepared. As your mind starts to wonder about how you will perform, how your horse is going to do, how much money is on the line, and who is in the stands watching, you begin to feel the butterflies flutter in your stomach. You go to your pickup, reach into your console, pull out your earbuds, and find your favorite playlist on your phone. You don't know why, but you know listening to music like AC/DC, Metallica, or Eminem makes you feel less nervous and pumps you up. As the music starts, you begin to feel yourself loosen up, the butterflies calm down, and you feel more poised and actually start looking forward to your run. All you know is that you feel relief from the anxiety that was starting to take over, but you have actually increased your odds of performing better by putting yourself into your Ideal Performance State.

Ideal Performance State, or IPS, is a state of mind in which an individual feels positive energy, extremely confident, poised, calm, instinctive, and prepared for the task at hand. IPS is synonymous with being "in the zone" or "in the groove". This state is unique for each individual as well as the task at hand and can be measured on a scale from one to ten, with one being the least amount of emotional intensity, or almost asleep, up to ten, which is being so full of energy, the person can hardly contain themselves.

If you want to perform more consistently, you need to be able to flip on your IPS like a light switch. First, you need to know what your IPS number is when you perform at your best. Do you ride your best when you are extremely chilled and relaxed (2-3) or do you ride better when you are very aggressive (7-9)?

When you are involved in an event like barrel racing, it is vitally as important to know which IPS number your horse needs to be at when competing. Some horses need to stay away from the ally and kept calm until it is your turn (2-3) while others may need to be woken up and rode very aggressively in the run (8-9). If you compete at your best when you are at a seven on the IPS scale, but your horse is high strung and needs to stay very relaxed (2-3), you will have to train yourself to reach a seven in your mind and focus, but your body will need to be a three for your horse to do his best. The only way for you to get mastery in this area is figure out how to increase or decrease your emotional intensity on demand and then practice it until it becomes conditioned.

If you find yourself in a timid, fearful, tired, or weak state and your IPS number is at a two, but you need to raise it to a six, there are numerous ways to increase your emotional intensity on command. Everyone is different, but one common way is to listen to music that inspires or motivates you. There are also some awesome videos on YouTube that are very inspirational. Check out the website FearlessMotivation.com. It has many videos with cool music overlaid with motivational speeches. Another way to increase your emotional intensity is to carry your body as if you were confident, poised, and full of energy. Think about how a person who is confident and filled with energy would look like. What would their facial expressions look like? What would their posture look like? What would they have to focus on and believe in order to feel that way? Another method to raise your number is to breathe differently. Inhale through your nose and exhale through your mouth quickly and with force. This brings more oxygen into your body while raising your heart rate. Another strategy is to picture a powerful image in your mind like a lion, shark, or anything else you can identify with that is strong and confident.

There are also several ways to decrease your intensity and bring your IPS number down. These methods are basically the opposite of the methods for increasing intensity. Listen to relaxing music or watch a video you know will make you laugh. Take long, deep breaths that slow your heart rate. Picture images in your mind that are peaceful and relaxing such as your last vacation spot. Talk to the other people in the warm up arena. Don't be so serious and stone faced. No one said you can't have any fun in the warm up arena.

The only way to perform consistently is to know your IPS number, your horse's IPS number, and then practice reaching that state on command. You don't even have to be on your horse to practice; you can practice anytime you want. First, ask yourself where on the scale is your emotional intensity right now? Then, pick a number you want to reach and practice the methods listed above to raise or lower your state until you reach your desired number. The more you practice, you will find which methods work best for you and you will be able to reach your desired state quicker. Also, remember to figure out your horse's IPS and train yourself to get into your desired state in your mind while helping your horse get into his. It can be a challenge if you and your horse's IPS numbers are on the opposite end of the scale, but with practice, you can condition your mind to reach your number while your body and communication with the horse helps him reach his optimal state.

Developing the discipline to reach your IPS on command is an important aspect in the mental game and if you make the effort to practice, you will be prepared to win.

ABOUT NICOLE RATKOWSKI...

Nicole Ratkowski worked her way up from 4-H and open shows, to little britches and high school rodeo, to college rodeo where she won the Ozark Region Championship her senior year in 2008. She then moved back up north and started her own training business along with her husband. She won money at some pro rodeos before getting into futurity horses which is now her passion. She trains barrel horses for a living; her husband, Russ trains reining horses and is also a farrier. They have one daughter, 2-1/2 yr old Paisley.

SR MOONLITES ON FIRE is a 2011 gelding by Frenchmans Moonlite out of a daughter of VF Moonfire.

He won both go rounds and the average at the Tri State Futurity. He ran a 14.85 in the first round to win it, also placing him 3rd in the $2000 added open race. He won the 2nd go of the futurity with a 14.80, once again placing 3rd in the open race.

5. Sherry Wyffels, BLAZING U TURN m by Blazin Jetolena, 15.133, $185.00

His current year money earnings are over $5000.00. He has won money almost every time he's been entered; including winning the 2nd go of the MN Futurity Breeders incentive and placing 3rd in the average. He recently ran in the MN Challenge Slot Race and brushed a barrel over to win it by 2/10 of a second and would have been the fastest time of the day!

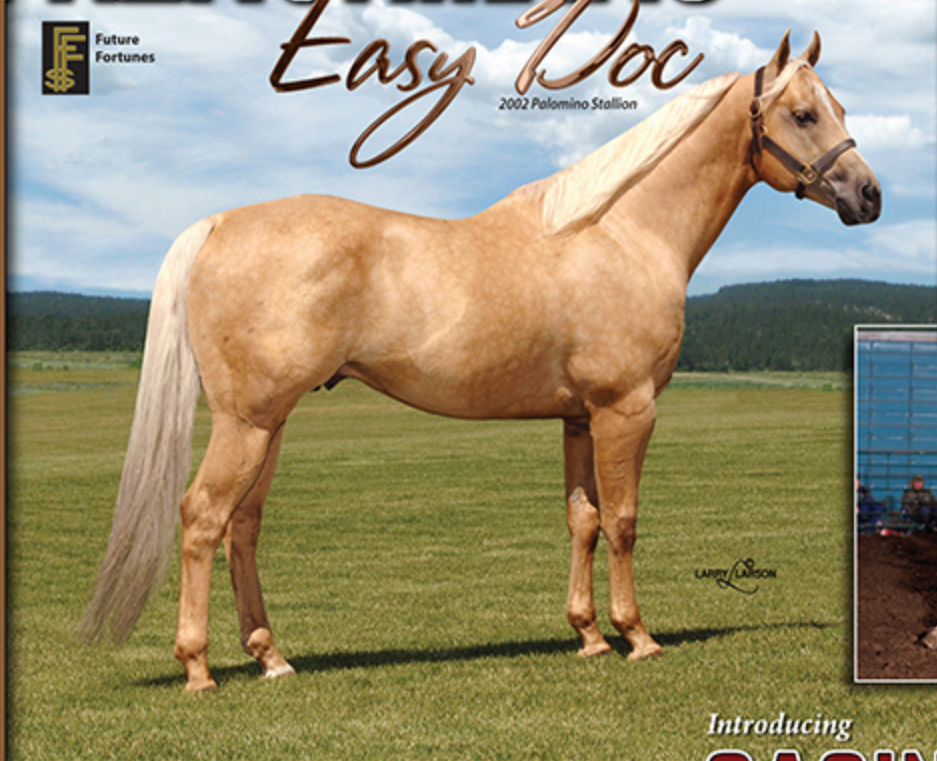

His next stop is JJ Classic and UBRA World race in Verndale, MN. Then we will be heading to Waterloo, IA for the Big J Barrel Blast Futurity and then it's off to Gillette, WY for the 17,000 added Fizz Bomb Classic and Belle Fourche, SD for the Roper Rally Futurity. I may enter him in the Rodeo Rigs Slot Race out there, as well. We will see where we end up toward the end of the season and if we can make a big move up in the WPRO Futurity standings, I'd like to take him to the World Finals in Waco, TX. He is currently 4th. There's a lot more money to be won this season, and we are going to try and win as much as we can!

KALI KOTT...

This being my first year to enter futurities I am beyond overjoyed that Sunny and I could go home as Bohnet's Barrel Barn Futurity Champions! This event was so well ran and such a nice facility to run at.

I was really excited to come to this event as one run is in the indoor arena and the other run is in the outdoor arena. We haven't had many outdoor runs but when we walked down the alley she was focused and ready. It was pretty exciting to hear "new leader" after our run. Sunny worked great every run and I am so happy with her. We are looking forward to the rest of the futurity season!!

I purchased San Bo Sunglo, aka Sunny, in December of 2012 from Toni Rondeau. Sunny is sired by Toni's stallion, Easy Bandit Bar and out of her mare Sunglo Mico. Sunny is the first horse off Easy Bandit Bar to enter futurities. We have had a pretty successful Futurity season so far and Toni's just as excited as we are for everyone. Sunny hasn't always been easy as she has quite the personality...some say she's just full of herself. I sent Sunny to Chantelle Ronsko for training and she came back working better than I ever could have asked for. She has so much heart, try and grit and I feel so lucky I get to be the one to take her on this journey.

I would like to thank my sister, Jo-Lissa for supporting and encouraging us as well as Chantelle Ronsko and Corleen Leclercq for always helping us out! Sunny and I would not be where we are without you guys!!

Thank you Ross, Lana, Lacey, Carol and everybody else involved with Bohnet's Barrel Barn Futurity. And thank you to all of the sponsors for supporting this great event.

WENDY PLATTS...

The Dash and Dance Futurity win meant a lot of things for me. It meant that all the time, effort, hard work and miles traveled had been well worth it. This mare is so talented and my number one goal was to make my first run count at this futurity so that my second run didn't feel like a 'do or die' attempt to make up for a bad first run...which was starting to become a pattern--a pattern I wanted to break.

Although the Seven Down Arenas have been good to me in the past and also the place I purchased my first horses out of Frenchmans Guy, I wasn't sure it was going to be the best arena for my futurity horse. I pushed her harder and rode more aggressively than I ever have making my first run; something I usually don't do because to me she is already going too fast for my comfort or so it seems. And it's not supposed to be about my comfort anyway. The faster she goes the more focused she is and I needed her to focus on the pattern. As hard as it was for me to actually push her, she effortlessly made the run. I knew a 13.6 won the open race that was held the evening before and I hoped to clock at least a 13.8 or a 13.7; so I was shocked when I heard 13.5 and even more shocked knowing that the time held until the last futurity horse ran in round one. To make the moment sweeter, she had also won the open barrel race that day with that run. In round two I rode pretty safe. I was extremely tired and had no energy from spending the entire night with a horse that coliced. In fact I almost thought I wouldn't be making my second run because I would be hauling the horse to a clinic in Sturgis, SD for colic surgery instead. But at 7:30 Sunday morning the horse finally pulled through and I was able to make my second run. I did not push the mare hard, so she wasn't as focused. I just wanted to make a clean run and still be mounted when the clock stopped. She ran a 13.6--another shock but second fastest in round two...also finished first in futurity average, sixth in the open race on Sunday, first in open 1-D average for the weekend and first in the senior 1-D both Saturday and Sunday. Many times throughout this year her athleticism has made up for my mistakes in riding and she does it so effortlessly.

JW Frenchmanicure aka Venus is one of two fillies born and raised here at our place in Scottsdale, AZ. The second filly, JW Freeze Fame, aka Serina arrived 5 days later after being frozen for a year and carried by a recip-mare. She is also a money earner in futurities this year and is trained and ridden by Joy Wargo. They are the first crop of foals out of what we consider our best broodmare Famous Brandi, (Dash Ta Fame X Susies Girl Sally by Fiesta In The Sky) who is a full sister to The Red Dasher. In 2013 both mares were hauled to Spearfish, SD and Seven Down Arenas to be sold at The Myers Performance Horse Sale and then were hauled all the way back to Arizona when we purchased them back.

I don't consider myself to be a futurity horse trainer at all, but have trained and ridden several of the horses I have competed on over the years. I decided to take one of these mares and make one last horse for myself to compete on. My first choice was Serina but she was a handful. Venus is very quiet and laid back for the most part. I started her on the barrels very slowly. I was in no hurry and really had no definite plans to compete in futurities; I just wanted to have a competitive barrel horse in the end. I like a horse that I can easily ride with one hand on the reins while the other hand is on the saddle horn. I have had a lot of help along the way from other trainers. This is the last horse I will train and I wanted to do it right. Joy Wargo, barrel horse trainer and good friend helped me fine tune this mare and my riding skills, while staying at my place in AZ during the futurities in January. Ashley Schafer, another barrel horse trainer allowed us to come and ride with her and brings a few of her horses to my arena to ride while she is here. My daughter Rylea, (a flight attendant for Southwest Airlines, who also trains and rides one of my other futurity horses JW Guyd Ta Fame, a gelding, sired by Frenchmans Guy X Famous Spender by Dash Ta Fame), is my best friend and here to help me think through problems, help with chores, and is my biggest fan, my traveling companion and co-pilot. Without her I would not be doing this one last time. There are many other trainers out there and fellow competitors that I learn from just by observing.

I have been barrel racing for 48 years and have recently started competing in rodeos once again and hope that when this futurity year comes to an end that JW Frenchmanicure will be extremely solid enough for rodeo competition.

Thank you to all who did such an amazing job producing the Dash and Dance Futurity, to Sitnal Livestock, and Seven Down Arenas.

COOLING OUT HORSES

THE WAY OF HORSES

By Eleanor Blazer

© 2016

Leave it on, or scrape it off?

We all know the quickest way to cool a horse is with water. The 1994 FEI Samsung Equine Sports Medicine Conference, which addressed the anticipated heat and humidity problems during the 1996 Olympic Games, held in Georgia, U.S.A, took that process one step further. Research found that it is better to scrape the water off. It didn't matter if the water was applied with a bucket and sponge, or sprayed on with a hose - the horse did not cool unless the water was immediately removed.

In a report presented during the conference Dr. Kerry Ridgway wrote, "To give you some idea of the incredible heat production occurring in the exercising horse, a horse racing at 13 meters per second (about 28 miles per hour) produces enough heat to bring 8 liters (2.11 gallons) of water from room temperature to a boil. That is enough heat to bring more than 2 gallons of water to a boil after just a two-minute race."

Leaving the water on could actually increase the heat of the horse. The initial water that is applied to the horse creates a barrier which does not allow the addition of more water to penetrate the first application. The molecules of the first water application are super-heated and hold the heat in. The immediate removal of the super-heated water was required to cool the horse quickly. It was recommended to spray or sponge with one hand, and remove the super-heated water with a sweat scraper in the other.

An additional benefit to this method is eliminating the fear of muscle cramping if cold water is being used. The water does not stay on the body long enough for the muscles to react. Research has shown that it's not cold water which may cause muscle cramping, but probably the extremely high heat.

During the conference it was recommended not to drape wet towels or sheets over these horses. They work like an insulator - keeping the heat in. Using fans, cooling out in the shade and taking advantage of a breeze were other methods of cooling out - to be used in conjunction with water cooling.

Monitor the vital signs during exercise and during the cooling-out process. Keep a record of normal average vital signs for each horse under your care. The rectal temperature of the normal horse at rest is 99-100°F (37.2-37.8°C). Generally, an elevated rectal temperature of 104 - 106°F (41°C) calls for immediate and aggressive cooling practices to be implemented. The temperature should start to drop within twenty minutes of starting the cooling-out process. Higher temperatures indicate a serious threat of heat stroke and a veterinarian should be contacted.

The normal respiration rate of a horse at rest is approximately 10-20 breaths per minute. A hot, aggressively exercising horse can exhibit a breathing rate of as high as 140 breaths per minute. Upon resting the rate should start to drop within 5 to 10 minutes.

The normal pulse rate of a horse at rest is approximately 35-45 beats per minute. A pulse rate of 80-100 beats per minute can be achieved during exercise. It should return to near-normal levels within 15 minutes of resting. If it takes longer the horse may be dehydrated.

A cool bath and the monitoring of vital signs will help keep your horse healthy this summer.
