FUTURITY CHAMPION & SLOT RACE CHAMPION

JORDAN BASSETT & MIMIS ON FIRE

Jordan Bassett...

South Buckeye Equestrian Center and the BRN4D have been so good to me over the years! I would have to say that's my favorite place to be! I have won over $100k in that arena. They put on two great futurities, with great payouts and awesome ground! (People were telling me Buckeye is my house, or Buckeye is the arena Jordan built-- ha!)

The Double Crown is given every year to the horse that wins the most money between both BRN4D futurities. To win first at both of them is such a huge accomplishment for Mimis On Firewater. Of course I am part of it but she's the one that did it. Her consistency is what every trainer dreams of at such a young age! I am just blessed she's taking me along for the ride!

Double Crown Champion!

Money won...

- Classic Equine Futurity
I won first in the first go 17.145, 5th in the second go 17.325, first in the Average, second in the Slot Race, for a total of $19,003 (without carry over money).
- Greg Olson Futurity
I won 2nd in the first go 17.183, 1st in the second go 17.133, 1st in the Average, and 1st in the Slot Race. I won the Double Crown bonus for a total of $30,532.00 (without carry over money).

I think her consistency is what got us to the pay window. As long as I do my job and look where I want her to go and stay square, she'll stay honest for me. At the Classic, in the first round, she rocked the second. I had her positioned a little bit too far out going into the turn which caused her to roll back too tight, but we were fortunate to stay standing. In round two, she did a little bit of the same thing at the third and I had to lift my leg.

The week between futurities I just exercised her lightly and tried to keep her fresh, which is pretty easy for her. On Thursday at the Greg Olson Futurity I changed my game plan a little bit. I usually like to breeze her through; then she'll be freer the next time I make a run—I opted not to. I felt like she already ran so hard the weekend before I didn't want to waste any runs on her, so I walked her through the pattern and hoped she had two good runs left for me! My dad, John Bassett was a Hall of Fame race horse trainer and also won the All American Futurity twice. He's had a huge impact on my career. One thing he has instilled into my head is that every run I make is one less, and because I feel this mare is so special, I want every single one to count!

At the Greg Olson I felt like my first run was not as smooth as the past two runs. She didn't get a very good start and I felt like we were out of position the whole run. I watched the video and surprisingly she looked great; I must have just been behind her. She loves her job and wants to please, so if she happens to be in the wrong position I know she's going to get gritty and try even harder for me.

My warm up before round two of the Greg Olson was a little different. In the first round, she didn't stay as round and was more rolling back. When I warmed her up for round two, I set up one barrel and loped her around it and asked her to really give in at the rib cage and keep forward motion. She's so smart she knew what I wanted from her when we took off to the first barrel—she was great! I know everyone was holding their breath as we were very close to them but she was just right to me and worked the best she had in the two weeks we had been there.

Mimis On Firewater is a 5-year-old palomino mare by Dash Ta Fame out of Firewater Fanny (multiple NFR qualifier with Amanda Clayman). She was bred by Harry and Vivian Blackwell of Naylor, MO. She was sold to Schiller Ranch of College Station, TX, where she was started by LaTricia Duke. Vickie Adams purchased her as a 2-year-old. Vickie then sold her to Webb Ranch LLC (Butch and Stephanie Webb) as a 3-year-old. Butch and Stephanie sent her to Ashley Schaffer. Ashley made an ERA commitment and the Webbs made a difficult decision to move her. The first time I threw a leg over her I knew she was going to fit me. LaTricia and Ashley did an outstanding job with her and have been great to me. Whenever I had any questions or needed some advice, they have always been there for me. I respect them so much as trainers and I cherish their friendships.

She's a typical Dash Ta Fame. She's a little bossy on the ground; I probably allow her to be more than I should. She's pretty strong when I warm her up but when I head to the gate her head drops and she's all business. I love it-- it's a cool feeling! I ride her every day in anything I can find, just not her running bit which is an Ed Wright medium shank twisted wire gag. I do lots of long trotting. She doesn't ever get worked on the pattern. As of right now she's doing everything right. I just want to keep her sound, happy and hungry for it. After I warm her up I get off her, that way my nerves don't hit her directly.

She was bred to be a winner. She has two half siblings that won over $100k each last year with Molli Montgomery, and a full sibling that was a standout as well. There is no doubt she has a ton of heart and grit. She loves what she does and craves it!

Right now she's going to rest for a week or two and then I'll start legging her back up and prepare for The Patriot and the Diamonds And Dirt Futurities the end of February and first of March. Our main goal is to have a winner for a long time, so we need to keep her sound and happy and hopefully she'll keep doing what she's doing.

I would like to thank all my family and friends. It takes a village and I couldn't do it without them! Of course, a huge thank you to my sponsors for believing in my program!

FRENCHMANS GUY 29 YEARS YOUNG

Frenchmans Guy now has progeny with earnings exceeding 10.5 Million Dollars! In fact, in 2015 fifty percent of the nation's top 25 futurity horses had Frenchmans Guy blood close up in their bloodlines. This among other accolades has made Frenchmans Guy the Decade's #1 Leading Living Sire.

Next spring "Guy" will be 30 years old. While he still looks great, Myers have decided to no longer send cooled semen out on him. They will be offering breeding through ICSI procedure using frozen semen.

What is ICSI? Intracytoplasmic sperm injection (ICSI) is an advanced reproductive procedure that may be beneficial in selected cases in which the number of spermatozoa available is very limited. The intracytoplasmic sperm injection (ICSI) procedure involves micro-injection of a single sperm cell into the cytoplasm of a mature oocyte (egg), which physically causes fertilization. Because ICSI utilizes a single sperm cell for each oocyte, this procedure holds tremendous potential for the production of foals using semen from stallions where few straws of frozen semen exist. The injected oocyte may be transferred immediately into the oviduct of a recipient mare or may be returned to the incubator and cultured for an additional 24 to 48 hours. If the oocyte was successfully fertilized, the single-celled oocyte should cleave into two cells and then those cells should cleave again into 4 cells, etc. over the next few days. The cleaved embryo would then be surgically transferred into the oviduct of a synchronized recipient mare.

The first foal produced from ICSI was born in 1996 at Colorado State University. Currently, sperm injection is only available at a few equine reproduction referral centers. The technique involves specialized equipment and requires advanced training by clinicians and/or technical staff. Since only a single sperm cell is selected and injected, ICSI can utilize very small quantities of frozen semen.

This advanced reproductive technology is also beneficial for mares that are unable to become pregnant themselves (i.e., mares with chronic uterine disease, cervical lacerations, or other damage to the reproductive tract that prohibit the

WHY DO WE REALLY HIT BARRELS?

By Windy Griffith

The most common issue in our industry is hitting a barrel. Everyone has their own theories on what causes us to knock over a barrel and how to prevent doing so. I would like to share with you how I like to identify the causes. My entire training program and clinics are set up to look outside of the normal criteria and think outside the box for causes and fixes of hit barrels.

The root of the problem is simple to find. Any reason that a barrel goes down is because you did not have control of the situation. Now, you have to identify what part of the run where control was lost. There are a few things we will take a look at to find the real answer to the down barrel.

First, I want to point out something to you that you may not have thought about before. Most barrel racers tend to focus on the down barrel and want to fix the “issues” at that particular barrel. Maybe you thought your horse did what is commonly blamed as a “shouldered barrel”. But is that what really happened? Did your horse drop its shoulder in the turn or did you have poor position going to that barrel resulting in the horse to shoulder in? Let’s think outside the box and get away from the down barrel.

Here is an example I would like to explore with you. Say you hit the second barrel. Let’s take a closer look at the whole run leading up to the barrel getting knocked over. Start from the very beginning of the run and ask yourself these questions...

- Was the approach to the first barrel from the alleyway ideal for a good pocket?
- Did you reach the correct turn spot?
- Did you leave the barrel straight?
- Did you keep balanced and centered with your horse through the turn and exit of the barrel?

If you answered yes to all these questions then wait for the next segment of “Why We Really Hit Barrels”. BUT, if you answered no to any of the questions, then let’s break it down to see why this affected the second barrel.

If you didn’t approach the first barrel to allow the right amount of pocket space to turn the barrel correctly and leave straight then that in itself can cause bad body position resulting in you trying to correct before turning the second barrel.

Let me give you one example of this idea. Let’s say your horse had less pocket space. Now you’re coming into your first barrel turn straighter verses having more bend that would allow for a nice round turn and you would leave the barrel straight. If your horse is straighter in the pocket than normal, this can cause a rider to get thrown forward losing the ability to sit balanced in the turn, losing control of the horse's position as well.

Now you are trying to get caught up with your horse while turning the barrel. Most of the time a horse will either turn on the backside or try to turn back onto the barrel. Either way you are not set up well for the approach of the second barrel.

Now you are either running more in a straight line towards the second barrel trying to get over to create a pocket or trying to pull your horse back over in order to not have too much of a pocket. Either way you are fighting to get to the pocket in the correct position without your horse losing too much momentum with all the extra contact to get the turn in the right position.

So, your incorrect position was not caused at the second barrel, but started at the approach to the first barrel. However, barrel racers would then go to school on their horses at the second barrel because that's where they thought the mistake was made. But, really working on having the correct position starting with the very first turn will set you up for the next. Focusing on leaving every barrel in the correct position will set you up more successfully for the next turns rather than just schooling on one barrel and that certain area of your run.

That is just one of the three causes I like to teach to solve the real reason of why a barrel was hit. Once you start looking at your run as a whole, you will find it is easier to pinpoint exactly what the issue truly was.

SHARIN HALL

I entered the Extreme Barrel Race to prepare for the Slot Race Friday night at the 1st Annual Ultimate Futurity. I was slightly cautious on my runs there after coming off the BFA Juvenile and a short break. After placing in the 2nd Go of the Extreme Futurity it helped me plan my run for the slot race at the Ultimate Futurity. My goal was to clean up my mistakes and keep her consistent and ask for a little more momentum. The 16.370 sealed the Slot Race win and rolled over to win the 1st round of the Isabella Quarter Horse Futurity.

I bought Dreaming Of Foosse on Barrel Horse World sight-unseen as an unbroken 2-year-old out of California, so her barn name is 'Cali'. Devin Clinton was referred to us in that area to get her broke for me. He put a great 60 days on her and shipped her to OK for me. She had a setback that fall when her spleen flipped, but God fixed it without surgery and I knew she must be special. I started training in her 3-year-old year and hauled her to some shows. At Fort Smith I offered her for $15,000 but no one looked at her. I just kept going and she started clocking in the fall and I decided to keep her and enter her in the Juvenile. While looking for a slot in Oklahoma City, Courtney and Dale Rankin offered us the chance to run in theirs. We caught the 3rd out to win 2nd. She showed me a lot of promise and I'm thankful to own her.

She has a desire to please. She never argues and gives 100% every trip. With her running pedigree, she is surprisingly laid back. Her only quirk is playing with her tongue when she gets bored standing by a trailer or in a stall. She's very independent but likes to be turned out with her stable mate, VF Girl on the Prowl.

My conditioning has always been consistency--a little bit every day. Change it up and keep them happy. She gets Sundays off, unless competing, then it's Monday. My plan is to continue winning and create a long-term athlete that loves her job.

I use a lot of therapies, even on myself. Great nutrition is the beginning--what you put in you get out. I use MVP'S Insync for faster muscle recovery, Gastroplex to prevent ulcers, and Vita E/Se to prevent tie up and Exceed 6way to cover the rest. I use the Theraplate at home to speed up recovery and prevent soreness. The Hidez Suit has been a great asset to reduce lactic acid build up and gain more range of motion. I use Back On Track products during the night and Cloud Boots while trailering. I tighten legs after every run with a mix from Mbar2.com under a quilt and standing wrap. I grease and pack hooves weekly/monthly.

I feel very blessed and fortunate to have a week like this and own such a great mare. The next stop is LG Pro Classic, The Patriot and Diamonds And Dirt. Thank you to everyone who has helped and encouraged me along life's journey.

Many thanks to Melanie Cloward of 321 Action Video, Renee Spiller of Wrapn3.com, Isabella Quarter Horses for the slot and futurity crystal trophy, Schuemack Construction Company for the Polaris ATV, Torin Bales Jewelers for the diamond ruby ring and Hidez USA for the suits.

There's a lot of people to thank for helping us achieve this great weekend of success. My Farrier, Carl Sabin drove 7 hours to reset my horses. Owner, Brad Oesch came to watch and support. Melissa Jones helped me take care of horses all week. Andrea Workman Enzenauer provided us spa therapy all week. Thank you to all my crew back at Winning Edge Stables taking care of everything while I'm gone and of course, God who keeps me healthy, safe and full of favor.

Thank you to PerformanceHorseStallions.com for the opportunity to share my story.

SHARIN HALL & DREAMING OF FOOSE

SHARIN HALL & Her Game Plan...

At PacWest the 1st round was almost picture perfect and good enough to win the round. The 2nd go I focused on being clean and asked for a little more. She was a 17.228 for 2nd in the round which helped us win the average. It was a tough futurity and times were fast.

My game plan was just to try to keep everything the same and consistent. If something doesn't work I try something new that I think will. Then I make mental notes of what does and stick with it. Cali is super fast and free running so I stay focused on positioning her correctly on her approach into the turns.

I do a lot of preventative maintenance and therapy to keep my horses feeling their best. When traveling long distances I use Cloud Boots to cushion the shock on the bumpy roads. I use Hidez Suits to prevent lactic acid build up and faster muscle recovery.

I also use Back On Track products for more circulation and reduce swelling. I feed CHAFFHAYE on the road to give them premium forage and use MVP Exceed, Insync and Gastroplex for ulcers, joints and overall health. When I am at home I use the Thera-plate.

Thank you to my sponsors United Vet, Mbar2, Chaffhayes, Testerman Feed, and Equihidez.

THE MOST IMPORTANT NUTRIENT

THE WAY OF HORSES

By Eleanor Richards

Copyright © 2016

The most important nutrient, water, is also the most neglected. Horse owners worry about protein, carbohydrates and energy, but few think about the water. A horse can live several weeks without food, but will die in five to six days without water.

Every organ in the body needs water. The digestive system requires it to dissolve nutrients and help move feed through the intestinal tract. It is needed to carry waste products out of the body. Water aids metabolism and regulates body temperature. It helps send electrical messages between cells so muscles will move, eyes will see, ears will hear and the brain will function. Water is needed to lubricate the joints and maintain healthy skin.

The amount of water needed by the horse varies with circumstances. Temperature, humidity, type of forage, age, over-all health, and activity level play a big part in water requirements.

A healthy horse at rest, in a cool environment with low humidity, eating lush green grass, and not producing milk may only have a requirement of one-half gallon per one hundred pounds of body weight per day. This means a horse weighing 1,000 pounds may only need 5 gallons of water in a 24-hour period.

The performance horse or lactating broodmare may have a requirement of more than one and a half gallons per hundred pounds of body weight per day. These horses need to replace the fluids being lost through exertion and milk production. A 1,000 pound broodmare or performance horse may need 15 gallons or more per day.

Due to the wide range of water requirements and the importance of water to the digestive system, fresh clean water must be freely accessible. Even a horse that has been working and is very hot should have access to water in a managed form. Allowing a hot horse to have several swallows every five minutes while cooling out is recommended.

Water consumption directly affects feed intake. If a horse is deficient in water he will decrease the amount of feed he eats. Water is needed for digestion. Lack of water is one of the main causes of impaction colic. The feed in the digestive tract becomes dry and will not move through properly, resulting in a blockage and colic.

The quality of water is very important. If the horse has access to water, but he will not drink it or it is contaminated, then severe health problems can occur.

Water sources come in many forms; public water supplies, wells, ponds, streams, and run-off.

Water from a public supplier is probably the safest as the system will have filtration, purification, and testing procedures are regulated and continuing. As long as there is not a breach in the line and the delivery system within the barn is clean, the water should be safe for consumption.

Water from a well should be tested. The health department or local agricultural extension agency can test water for bacteria, minerals, and pH levels. These tests should be conducted annually.

Ponds, streams, and water from run-off should not be used as the sole source of drinking water. Fertilizers, herbicides, insecticides, bacteria, and other forms of contaminants can be present. The water supply can dry up or become stagnant. Blue-green algae growth in a pond can cause a type of poisoning which may result in the death of the horse.

You can lead a horse to water...he will be more prone to drink if it is clean and fresh.

* Proper nutrition and management practices can prevent many problems associated with caring for horses. You can learn how to provide your horse with a better life-style by taking the online course "How to Feed for Maximum Performance" taught by Eleanor Blazer. Go to www.horsecoursesonline.com for more information.
